Eagle Pride

Just a little something to accompany Eastern's mascot down the road!

Screaming Eagle

He split from the cliff, dropping without drift through thunderheads below.
As if by recoil, though clouded turmoil, he trapped it's upward flow.

Shot aloft by an erupting trough, he mastered the sky.
Scanning terrain o'er his domain with telescopic eye.

Spotting prey through stratus gray, bolting to his quarry
With white bold head and talons spread, he ruled the territory.

When he screeches airscaping beaches, it triggers inspiration.
Proud 'n free, ranging sea to sea, he's the symbol of our nation.

High overhead, with wings wide-spread, soars "The American Dream."
It swells the heart, that prideful part, whenever the eagle screams.

Location Correction

The picture of Randy Brawner states that the picture was taken at Carnoustie, Scotland. Unless Carnoustie Golf Club has the exact same clubhouse and bridge as St. Andrews Golf Club, then I say that the picture was actually taken at St. Andrews, Scotland.

While stationed in England ('74-'77) with the U. S. Army, I had the pleasure of playing the "Old Course" with my father. It was a dream come true for both of us.

Bob Huggins '68 BA education, LTC, USA (Ret.), Belton, Texas

P.S. Love the magazine and the school. Had the opportunity to take my 9-year-old grandson to the campus this summer and he now wants to attend EWU instead of Texas A & M. (I'm now in trouble with my Texas friends.)

one day, I'll _____.
