

The President would like to know... What's your big idea or big question?

Dear Alumni and Friends,

When I kicked off the 2007-2008 school year, I made a commitment to make this year a transformational one for all of us – and I committed myself to working closely with faculty and staff to make Eastern truly the most student-centered university.

To make good on this commitment, I'm inviting all members of the EWU community – students, faculty, staff, alumni, family and friends – to ask me their “big questions” and to share their “big ideas.”

You can do this in two ways. If you're on campus, just drop your message into the big red box outside my office on the second floor of Showalter Hall (boxes soon to come in the PUB and on the Riverpoint Campus).

Or, to make it even easier, you may submit your message online at the Office of the President website: www.ewu.edu/officeofpresident. Entering your name and contact information is optional.

I'll be answering or replying to them on a regular basis through the The Easterner, Eastern magazine, Good Morning Eastern, as well as regular communications with alumni, faculty and staff.

While I probably can't process every big question or big idea, know that I promise to read them all and incorporate them into my daily decisions and actions. I am committed to starting something big. I know you will be with me every step of the way.

Dr. Rodolfo Arévalo, President
